

SANTO DOMINGO PUEBLO MISSION CHURCH
Santo Domingo Indian Reservation, New Mexico

Easily accessible to the traveler just off the main highway between Santa Fe and Albuquerque is one of the most interesting and least changed of the Indian pueblos in the state . . . Its Indian inhabitants still practice beliefs and traditions at least 600 years old. And though no pictures may be taken in the pueblo, visitors are welcomed to the many ceremonial dances and ancient rituals. The mission church has the furnishings and records of the first mission, dating back to the early 1600's.

Petley

Published by Petley Studios, P.O. Box 7495, Albuquerque, N. M.

38079

